

Art

“ Art is an invisible way of speaking “ , actually this is my own personal opinion or the best definition so far that describes art to me , but actually art is much further than that , Art can be a moment , an idea , a mood , a scene you like to see , a tone you’d like to draw while listening to it , Art is a cure for yourself and a relief or a way of expressing what’s going on inside yourself or inside your mind, However , Art can be found in multiple things , like : limitless imagination , expressing negativities before positives , asking questions to yourself continuously , watching or analyzing everything , having a different look about almost everything .

But like everything else , Art has pros and cons , one of the bad things about art is its start , it usually begins with this question :” What if ?” this question can have a whole chain of good and bad answers or moments , the good moments about this question can be found in creating something you like to see , or creating a certain image in your own imagination but you wish to see in the real life , or being creative about your final result when creating something which might lead everyone else to like it later on , However , the bad moments about this question can result in overthinking , having complicated thoughts and having internal conflicts between the world you’re creating and the world you’re living in , this conflict becomes a part of you later on , which leads to escape reality more than before , even if your inner universe is having questions without answers , one of the bad results about it is becoming introvert somehow , and at some point you may stay silent for a long while not because you don’t want to talk to people , but because your mind is so busy with something , Multitasking is one of the spontaneous results that show up with time , Also multitasking can be related to your mind , way of thinking and your daily activities , it brings some things that show up on the way like to be more observant , more emotionally and spiritually sensitive , more intelligence , more widened ideas and thoughts , more creative opinions yet they can more practical if they’re used rightly , creativity becomes part of you as your visual memory is operating more than before and you keep yourself updated with the details you like to follow , not everything can get your attention yet you're watching everything and everyone around you , but once you're attracted to a specific detail , you're gonna have it in your memory forever , you'll keep it updated to create a version that 'll fit you out of it , exerting much efforts , whether physically or mentally become part of your daily routine as you'll be used to watch everything around looking for something specific to get your attention which will get you to be focused completely with it .

Art is around us all the time and it's everywhere , it just needs someone to observe which type of art can be found as your eyes are always the start point to any special thing that can get your attention and no matter how hard this detail can be , but if it's worthy to you , you'll find the way to it because you find something special about it and you want it to be a part of your world and your soul , as known , it only takes few seconds to get attracted to something or someone , cuz there's something with what you're seeing but art is not just about seeing but it's also about what you'll create or do after what you've just saw simply because you can find art in everything around you , you're now having a different look at the world , you become a simple person with a complex mind , your personality will change , your imagination will be more opened and unlimited , your mind will be more focused and chaotic at the same time , your comfort zone will change or gets updated from time to time , the concept of satisfaction will not be in your life anymore as you're always looking for more or looking for something you want to find or looking forward to have a specific moment or looking forward to experience a certain situation , your fairytales will be struggling a little bit to become a reality but if things go as planned , there will be much less struggles as art is not what you see but what you make others see .